From left to right: Vascular surgeon Caitlin Hicks, M.D.; Cardiac surgeon Jennifer Lawton, M.D.; Cardiologist Marlene Williams, M.D.; Vascular surgeon Margaret Arnold, M.D.; and Cardiologist Allison Hays, M.D.

When it comes to caring for your heart and vascular health, nothing is routine.

Cardiovascular disease is the top cause of death in women, killing more women than all cancer combined, and the no. 1 killer of all Americans.

The experts from the Johns Hopkins Heart and Vascular Institute understand that you are unique as a woman, and caring for your heart and vascular health should be just as unique.

We offer groundbreaking treatments beyond traditional therapies that are personalized for your heart and vascular health—from preventive care and medical management to routine and complex heart and vascular surgery.

Meet our experts at convenient locations throughout the Greater Baltimore area.

Learn more: hopkinsmedicine.org/heart

JOHNS HOPKINS
MEDICINE